TRANSITIONAL LIVING

TRANSITIONAL

The perfect blending of two unique styles...

Opposites do attract! Transitional style is the harmonious blending of modern and traditional elements. The result is an elegant, enduring design that is both inviting and inspirational. The transitional color palette relies on soft colors like beige, tan and ivory that evoke a clean and serene atmosphere with dark browns adding contrast and depth. Straight and simple lines are essential to transitional design, with an occasional soft curve thrown in to add character. What makes transitional design so unique is the inherent ability to allow for natural elements such as stone, granite and wood to play sophisticated roles in melding the two styles.

White shaker style cabinets with clean lines surround a dark stained bead board island. Warm hardwoods act as a traditional anchor to the stainless steel appliances and brushed nickel fixtures which add modern themes, culminating in a kitchen that exemplifies transitional style.

The neutral walls and straight lines create an uncomplicated atmosphere while the rich wood tones and curved staircase provide interest and character. The blending of modern lighting with the Mission-style cabinets further enhances the transitional style of this space.

The three projects showcased in this newsletter were chosen based on their use of transitional design.

The projects cover a wide spectrum of personalities from a strong statement made with reclaimed wood to a timeless kitchen that complements a traditional 1920's ranch home. Styles have been blended to meet each homeowners current lifestyle. Allowing each of them to "Fall in Love with their Home...Again." View our gallery at www.weidmannremodeling.com/gallery.php.

BEFORE

2013 Color Trends

Pantone's (a leading authority on color) predictions are forecasting a very colorful 2013! They are predicting that Emerald is the color of the year, with other bright colors right behind it; Jade, Navy and Poppy, to name a few. While these forecasted colors are geared more towards the fashion industry, there is a distinct crossover between fashion and homes. But, what if Emerald is a little out of your comfort zone? Sherwin Williams is presenting more toned down versions of these colors for their 2013 lineup. Their colors are Aloe Green, Rosedust and Darkroom. Also, you can use soft greys and tans (transitional colors) as grounding wall colors and bring in pops of color through counter top selections, cabinet hardware, tiles and accessories. Whatever direction you decide to go, 2013 is definitely a year of color!

Bold reclaimed timbers contrast the serenity of this master bath, creating a unique space that blends rustic and modern. The warm tile floor, dark custom vanity, lighting and wall color further enhance the transitional style. Repeating the warm wall color and bold wood details in the master bedroom creates a seamless flow between the two spaces.
